This fully restored 1969 Porsche 911 E embodies the unmistakable aesthetics of the early 911 generation and combines sporting pedigree with timeless elegance. Finished in the characteristic Polorot colour, the 911 E makes a particularly striking impression. The clean lines, the iconic silhouette and the fine details of its early model years make it a car that, even more than five decades later, has lost none of its appeal.

The car was originally delivered to the USA and found its way back to Germany in 2013. A year later, in 2014, the Porsche was granted its first German roadworthiness certificate, as evidenced by the relevant TÜV reports and H-certificates.

In 2019, the car underwent a complete restoration by a Belgian specialist and was fully rebuilt. The 911 has been in the current owner's possession in Germany since 2020.

The car's current condition is a testament to an uncompromising and technically superbly executed restoration. The paintwork and interior are beautifully and harmoniously finished. All mechanical components are in perfect working order.

The Certificate of Authenticity from the USA confirms 'matching numbers' for the engine and gearbox, as well as the original colour 'Polorot 6802' in combination with the black leather interior. In other words, exactly as the Porsche left the factory in 1969.

A valuation report from 2020 documents its condition as 'Grade 1'.

Authentic, charismatic and timeless. A classic that brings its history to life with every drive.
